History of the University

The year was 1904 when a very determined young black woman, Mary McLeod Bethune, opened the Daytona Educational and Industrial Training School for Negro Girls. It underwent several stages of growth and development through the years. In 1923, it became a co-ed high school as a result of a merger with Cookman Institute of Jacksonville, Florida. A year later, the school became affiliated with The United Methodist Church, evolved into a junior college by 1931 and became known as Bethune-Cookman College.

In 1941, the Florida State Department of Education approved a 4-year baccalaureate program offering post-secondary and teacher education. Dr. Bethune retired in 1942 at which time James E. Colston became president until 1946 when Dr. Bethune resumed the presidency for a year.

Richard V. Moore, Sr. became the third president in 1947. Under his tenure the college was accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, in 1970 joined the United Negro College Fund and other academic and professional organizations. The curriculum expanded, student enrollment increased and new buildings were constructed for residential housing and classrooms.

Oswald P. Bronson, Sr., Ph.D., an alumnus of the University, served as the fourth president of the university from 1975 to 2004. During his tenure increased student enrollment led to continuous development and expansion of the university. A rapidly increasing student enrollment led to construction of more student housing and classroom buildings. Major Fields of study increased from 12 in 1974 to 37 by 2003. In addition, seven continuing education centers for students began operating throughout the state. While maintaining accreditation by SACS Florida State Board of Education, and The University Senate of The United Methodist Church Board of Higher Education, the college added new accreditations in the Nursing and the Teacher Education programs.

Trudie Kibbe Reed, Ed.D, was appointed to the presidency in August 2004 by the Board of Trustees. Dr. Reed is the first woman to serve in this capacity since Dr. Bethune. Under the leadership of Dr. Reed, the International Institute for Civic Participation and Social Responsibility was launched in January 2005 as a way to increase student learning about citizenship and leadership development. In 2007, President Reed led the movement from college to a university by bringing the first Graduate School program and officially changing the name to “Bethune-Cookman University.”

Dr. Edison O. Jackson served as Interim President since May 2012 and was appointed as the sixth President of Bethune-Cookman University in March of 2013. Dr. Jackson's vision is strategically positioning the University to become the best small University in the Nation. Under his leadership the University has established Centers of Excellence, developed a fiscal model that will make the University more efficient and productive, paved the way for increased quality graduates through Academic Integration and the College of Undergraduate Studies, strengthened our town and gown relationships and positioned the University to be more competitive.
